The diagram illustrates a network structure with black rectangular nodes and connecting lines. The nodes are arranged in a hierarchical or branching pattern. At the top, there is a single node. Below it, the network branches out into two main paths. The left path consists of several nodes connected in a sequence, with some nodes having additional branches. The right path also consists of several nodes connected in a sequence. The overall structure suggests a flow or a relationship between different components or entities represented by the nodes.
